

City date for rock band in TV row

SEX PISTOLS, the Punk Rock group whose four-letter performance on television caused uproar with viewers and television authorities, will appear at the Liverpool Stadium a week to-morrow.

The performance is part of their "Anarchy in the U.K." tour.

But group leader Johnny Rotten claimed: "There will be no trouble."

Speaking from London, he said: "This talk of violence is exaggerated.

"When we get on stage, we just give it all we have got. Sometimes things happen which we really are not responsible for. But I can tell you there should be no trouble at the Stadium."

Thames Television has now suspended Bill Grundy, who presented the Today programme which featured the group.